In the Eid sermon, titled "Our Eid is sincerity and sacrifice", Dr Omar Habtoor Al Darei, Chairman of the General Authority of Islamic Affairs, Endowments and Zakat, highlighted the value of honesty and its impact on individuals and society.

He said honesty is the shortest path to trust and among its most enduring foundations, noting that trust builds strength through which societies prosper and civilisations are built. He added that the UAE's leadership demonstrated sincerity of purpose and unity of resolve in founding the nation on honesty from the very beginning, helping establish a strong and stable country.

The preacher said honesty reflects loyalty to one's homeland and sincerity in serving it, through which nations thrive and societies remain strong, while truthful people stand as guardians of their countries through their loyalty and actions.

He added that honesty is reflected in safeguarding the nation's interests, defending it, and standing firmly against those who seek to undermine it. He said honesty is also embodied in parents raising their children well, teachers remaining dedicated to their mission, employees carrying out their responsibilities with integrity, and every individual striving to contribute to the country's continued progress.

Following the prayer, His Highness Sheikh Mohamed bin Zayed Al Nahyan exchanged

Eid greetings with worshippers.

His Highness and the Sheikhs then recited Al Fatiha in memory of the late Sheikh Zayed bin Sultan Al Nahyan.
