UAE President, King of Jordan discuss fraternal ties, regional developments

UAE President His Highness Sheikh Mohamed bin Zayed Al Nahyan today held talks with His Majesty King Abdullah II bin Al Hussein of the Hashemite Kingdom of Jordan to discuss the deep-rooted fraternal relations and cooperation between the two countries. Both leaders reaffirmed their commitment to further strengthening ties in a way that serves mutual interests and benefits their peoples.

During the meeting at Qasr Al Shati in Abu Dhabi, His Highness and His Majesty also discussed a number of regional and international issues of concern, with a focus on the situation in the Middle East, including the latest developments in the Occupied Palestinian Territory.

The two leaders reiterated their countries' steadfast position in support of the legitimate rights of the Palestinian people and underscored the importance of international efforts towards achieving a just and comprehensive peace based on the two-state solution as the only path to lasting stability in the region in the interest of all its nations and peoples.

In this regard, both sides firmly rejected any Israeli plans to annex the West Bank or any part of the Occupied Palestinian Territory or forcibly displace Palestinians from their land, in addition to ongoing settlement expansion. They warned that such measures undermine the two-state solution and pose a threat to regional peace, security, and stability.
